Upon receiving a BS degree in Physics, graduates are expected to demonstrate:

- a solid understanding in fundamental physics
- an appreciation for how physics is like and unlike other disciplines
- the ability to independently investigate both theoretical and experimental problems and should:

- be taught material at the appropriate level
- demonstrate a basic mastery of the course material
- show the level of interest appropriate to a physics major.