LETTER FROM THE ACADEMIC VICE PRESIDENT

Intellectual work is the most powerful and long-lasting work done in a university, and it is mostly invisible. We glimpse hints of its power in a classroom charged with the dynamic energy that flows from engaging issues of substance. We may sense it during a conversation where all parties are grasped by a question. Generally, though, we don’t see thinking as it is happening, be that in close reading, interpretation, critical analysis, discovery, creative imagination, or innovation. Rather, intellectual work becomes visible in its fruits, the scholarly publications, public performances, artistic objects, and influence on wider systems and institutions that are its effects.

This publication celebrates the intellectual accomplishments of Gonzaga’s faculty by presenting their scholarly and artistic creations and professional engagements from June 1, 2014 through May 31, 2015. A perusal of these pages will introduce you to the expertise and excellence of Gonzaga’s faculty. You will see how, across a diverse range of fields, members of Gonzaga’s faculty are actively contributing to the development of disciplinary knowledge and understanding, artistic creativity, and professional practice.

Faculty scholarly work is vital to the mission of Gonzaga University. It is integral to making good on the claim that Gonzaga is an exemplary learning community. It is critical to professors’ ability to challenge, support, and accompany students to become men and women for others – courageous, creative, skilled thinkers and actors who embrace challenge with relish and turn their critical acumen to the big problems and questions of our time on behalf of communities beyond themselves. And, faculty scholarly work is essential to bringing the university’s explicitly academic, professional expertise to bear on serious challenges and opportunities in our local, regional, and global contexts. All of these are fundamental to the Jesuit, Catholic, humanistic vision of higher education for our time and into the 22nd century.

I invite you to read and take pleasure in the work of Gonzaga’s faculty, dedicated individuals who are, as former Father General, Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, S.J., stated clearly, “at the heart of the university.”

Sincerely,

Dr. Patricia O’Connell Killen, ’74
Academic Vice President

SCHOOL OF PROFESSIONAL STUDIES

“The School of Professional Studies (SPS) continues to grow in reach, success and connections. The Western States Communications Conference—hosted by the Communication and Leadership Studies Department—was held for the first time here in Spokane, February 20-24. This annual conference included over 600 participants from universities up and down the west coast and proved to be a great success. On March 27-28, the SPS hosted the 3rd annual Leadership Studies Student Research Symposium which was a true collaboration by all faculty and staff from our school. With over 100 participants, the symposium was a great opportunity for faculty and students to present research and ideas relevant to the field of leadership.”

“During the 2014-2015 academic year, the School of Education faculty authored 72 publications such as book chapters, sections and journal articles. In addition, they made 67 local, regional, national, and international presentations. Dozens of students presented their work with faculty at these various conferences. Clearly, this was a very productive year for our faculty and students! We encourage, value, and support scholarly activity and thus have made it one of the five pillars of our strategic plan.”

- VINCENT ALFONSO, PH.D., DEAN OF THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION
EXTERNAL SCHOLARLY FELLOWSHIPS
“The School of Engineering and Applied Science continues to take great pride in our exceptional faculty. Over the last year, 80% of our faculty were engaged in professional activities such as papers, conferences, professional societies, and serving as technical reviewers. We are excited to note the efforts of these faculty to integrate their professional activities with innovative opportunities for student engagement.

Dr. Steven Schennum, for example, continues his exceptional work within the Smart Antennae and Radio Lab (SARL) that includes close interaction with industry partners, while also engaging our students directly in the SARL projects. This engagement has advanced to the point where the students now serve as coauthors on some of Dr. Schennum’s papers presented at international meetings. We look forward to continuing growth in our faculty, as well as even broader professional opportunities for our students through faculty/student collaborations.”

- STEPHEN E. SILLIMAN, PH.D., DEAN OF THE SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING & APPLIED SCIENCE
