I. PROGRAM GOALS

The Externship Program at Gonzaga has several purposes:

A. To develop students’ abilities to learn from their experiences;

B. To help students develop a sense of professional responsibility;

C. To give students greater insight into the workings of the legal system; and

D. To train students in lawyering skills.

These goals are discussed below, with a particular emphasis on the role of the supervising attorney. Whether students fulfill each of these goals depends on the quality of their relationships with their supervising attorneys. Thus, the success of our externship program depends in large part on your willingness and ability to serve as the students’ supervisor, teacher, and role model.

The extra time you spend supervising and training your externs will enhance student learning. In this way, your workload will be eased through the externs’ work product, and you will be participating in the professional development of future lawyers. It is because of your ability to educate our students that we have selected you as a supervising attorney.

A. DEVELOPING THE ABILITY TO LEARN FROM EXPERIENCE

Part of preparing to be a practicing attorney is to learn from experience and to improve one’s performance through practice. In essence, to train to be an effective learner.

You can help students achieve this goal of learning from experience in two important ways. First, by discussing the students’ goals at the beginning of the externship, including how the student intends to accomplish these goals. Second, we ask you to continue talking with the students about their performance and whether they are achieving their goals. It is also important to encourage the students to do a regular self-assessment.
B. DEVELOPING PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY

Studies show that a student’s early lawyering experiences play a primary role in their developing sense of professional responsibility, and an externship is the ideal teaching situation. For this reason, your role as mentor to the student extern is particularly significant. By serving as a role model and talking with the student about professional issues, you can greatly increase the student’s awareness of ethical behavior.

Law is a service profession, and students must be aware of their responsibility regarding matters that affect the lives of others. You can model this behavior through your attitude, and by talking with the students about this responsibility and the pressure it may bring to their work. The student will learn the expected standards for meeting deadlines, proofing written work, voicing concern about apparent injustices, communicating in a timely fashion with clients, and being prepared.

Please directly address the relevant requirements of the Rules of Professional Conduct as well as other rules and codes particular to the jurisdiction. Students need to learn that these rules are not merely the subject of an examination; rather, they are important guidelines for practice and relevant in the day-to-day work of a lawyer. To that end, please discuss client conflict and confidentiality practices, as well as your approaches to discovery and trial tactics.

Because issues of professional responsibility and ethics play a large part in the practice of law, attorneys become accustomed to encountering them as part of their daily work. Students, however, have not had experience with these issues and may be hesitant to ask questions. When an ethical problem surfaces in connection with cases in your office, we encourage you to discuss it with the students. You may need to pay attention to areas of practice that you take for granted, such as client confidentiality, issues of justice and fairness, and other topics that the students have not often encountered. It is all part of their learning process as your extern.

C. GIVING STUDENTS INSIGHTS INTO THE LEGAL SYSTEM

There are some general areas of reflection we think our students should be doing in conjunction with their externships. We will be discussing these topics in our reflective seminar classes and in our private meetings. We ask you to keep these topics in mind and discuss them with externs, especially when they are relevant to the student’s work.

- Does the legal system promote justice?

One of the focal issues for our discussions is whether the legal system promotes justice. We talk about the quality and inequality of representation the students observe and what this means to the goal of achieving “justice.” Do the attitudes of the attorneys they observe convey commitment and dedication? We also look at other participants in the system such as clients, defendants, jurors, judges, and police officers, as well as sociological issues, such as poverty, racism, sexism, drugs, and values, as we evaluate how these factors work to promote or inhibit justice.
• What is the work of the lawyer?

Another focus of our seminars is the variety of work that lawyers perform. Because our students work in diverse placements they have an opportunity to learn about adversity of roles. Talk to your externs about your own experiences, what you like and dislike about the work you do, and what you do to cope with the stress of your work. It is important that students’ tasks be varied so they can experience lawyering first-hand. Invite the externs to participate at all levels of a case file they are working on. In addition, they should be encouraged to participate in meetings and observe lawyering tasks not necessarily related to their immediate project, but which present further learning opportunities.

Many students are also interested in learning how to balance their personal lives with their demanding careers. As a mentor, you can provide useful insight about the tools you use and the obstacles you face in achieving balance.

• How does the legal system work?

This is a major part of the extern experience. Students need to know about actual procedural workings of the courts, law offices, administrative agencies, arbitrations, etc, and about how to perform in these settings. Please make an effort to expose your externs to as many kinds of proceedings as possible, including allowing them to observe.

D. TRAINING STUDENTS IN LAWYERING SKILLS

Challenge your externs by assigning them tasks that will require them to stretch, to learn, and to grow. It is possible that in some instances the amount and quality of a student’s work product will barely compensate for the time you spent training and supervising that student, either because the work is highly complex or because it requires a skill the student has not developed. It is in these times that your role as educator comes to the forefront.

We stress to the students that their tasks must be those of a lawyer rather than a law clerk or paralegal. This requirement comports with ABA standards. The chart on the next page differentiates the job of a law clerk from the experience of an extern. One of the essential differences between an unpaid or paid law clerk and an extern is the award of academic credit for the learning component of an externship.

Because our students work at externships in a wide variety of legal settings, the lawyering tasks they are exposed to cover a broad variety of skills. We understand that development of certain skills may be applicable while others may not. Generally, we hope most of the following skills will be available to each placement.

1. Research, Analysis, and Writing

Student’s externing in trial and appellate courts and in law offices where a majority of the work is motions, appeals, and/or trial briefs, are expected to improve these skills over the course of their externships. This means that students will become more efficient in their research, have a better knowledge of the tools available and how these tools are used, as well as gain an ability to focus on and develop the critical issues in the case. We expect that their analytical skills will become more sophisticated, including an increased appreciation for the significance of facts and policy. Finally, students’ writing should become more succinct, clear, and appropriate for its intended audience.

When you assign the students research projects, ask them to formalize their work in a written research memorandum. The traditional law school curriculum provides very few opportunities for students to practice legal writing skills. Requiring all, or most, written work to be formally prepared will benefit your externs.

Every Gonzaga extern has completed a course in legal research and writing and has been introduced to at least one model form for writing a legal memorandum. You have a right to expect a high quality written work product from your extern, in a format of your choice. Please demand it. Although requiring excellence may be hard work and may not be time efficient, you will nearly always find your effort fairly rewarded.

In order to accomplish these goals, discuss with students not only their final products, but the approaches used to achieve them. Students must be able to explain how they approached the task, what resources they used and why, and what they would do differently when assigned a similar task. Furthermore, students need to rewrite their work until it meets the standard expected in that court or office.

It is critical that students who are doing this kind of work be given their assignments in context. That is, students should be given the entire case file, even if the specific assignment deals only with researching a particular issue in the case. It is crucial that students acquire an understanding of the way these issues fit into the larger picture of the case, and that they be given the opportunity to examine the history of the case to date. We continually stress to our students that they extern to learn how to be lawyers, not legal clerks. It is important that students develop beyond the skills they learn in the classroom; for example, they need to see how a case proceeds, and get a sense of the responsibilities of judges and lawyers.

2. Oral Advocacy

Students in externship positions that allow them to represent clients at hearings have usually chosen such a placement to improve their oral advocacy skills. This requires several things from you as a supervising attorney. First, you will need to oversee the student’s preparation for the hearing, emphasizing the importance of being prepared and demonstrating how this is done. Second, be present at the hearing, taking specific notes for feedback to the student. Third, debrief the performance with the student as soon as possible after its completion.

Good preparation, clarity of expression, flexibility, physical presence, and appearance are all aspects of good oral advocacy and are specific goals students need to achieve. In order to measure the student’s progress, it is essential that you observe them at several points during the externship. It is also important to provide the student with progressively more challenging work and continuous feedback. Students who begin their externships handling traffic tickets should progress to arguing motions and second-chairing trials if their demonstrated skills make this appropriate.

3. Case and Time Management

Students in every externship should be working on case/client and time management skills. They must learn how to prioritize their work, set time limits for accomplishing tasks, work under pressure, and work more efficiently. Part of this process is learning how to compile and maintain a case/client file, including regularly updating the file to reflect completed work, and organizing file contents to make data easily accessible. Supervising attorneys can help students achieve these goals by setting good examples, giving students deadlines for projects, giving students some assignments with short deadlines, keeping a close eye on students’ time logs, and discussing organization techniques with their externs.

4. Client Relations and Professional Demeanor

We expect students who work with clients to improve their relationship skills. They must learn to establish and maintain rapport, be responsive to client concerns, assess credibility, acquire relevant facts, and provided helpful information to clients in an empowering fashion.

Students should also be learning to work in a professional setting with support staff, colleagues, adversaries, and judges. As a supervising attorney, you should observe and give feedback in each of these areas. Discuss your approaches to these different relationships with your externs. One useful technique to model behaviors is “shadowing.” The student can sit in the attorney’s office to listen and observe the attorney as he works. A student may also shadow an attorney working outside the office.

II. THE EXTERNSHIP PROCESS

A. ORIENTATION

Schedule an orientation meeting with your extern on or before their first day of work. This meeting will set the tone of your relationship for the semester, so it is important that you plan for it and take sufficient time to cover the subjects. Listed below are some suggestions. A more detailed discussion follows this list.

ORIENTATION CHECKLIST

The following are subjects that should be covered in the orientation meeting with your extern:

1. The function of your agency, office, or organization;
2. the role of the extern in the office’s functioning;
3. the nature of the student’s work;
4. relevant office policies and chain of command;
5. schedule for weekly meetings with the student;
6. the student’s expectations for the externship;
7. the student’s work schedule;
8. layout of the office and library, and introduction to others;
9. explanation of the first assignment.

Following are some specifics to help you prepare for your orientation with the externs:

1. The Function of your Agency, Office or Organization

Many law students have no previous exposure to the legal profession. Although the role of your office in relation to the legal system may seem obvious to you, it probably is not obvious to your extern. An explanation of who your clients are, specific practice areas, budget information, the number of attorneys in the office, whether you are a civil servant, etc., helps orient the student to this new environment.

2. The Student Extern’s Role in the Office

Whether externs are expected to carry their own supervised case load or to function in a role more analogous to that of a law clerk, they still need to know their duties and responsibilities, as well as any limitations on their authority.

To develop self-confidence and a sense of responsibility, a student must know that she is contributing. Let the externs know that their work is important to your office and to the client. Students who sense that they are not serving a useful function will gain little from the experience.

If your office personnel engages in professional group functions, such as staff meetings or social gatherings, please include the externs whenever possible. This effort will be rewarded by a better relationship, which is likely to result in a better work product.

3. The Nature of the Student’s Work

If you know, or can anticipate, the specific cases or projects the extern will work on during the semester, discuss them at this time. This is also a good time to talk with your extern about available resources.

4. Relevant Office Policies and Chain of Command

When you review the nature of the student’s work, it is appropriate to discuss policies and lines of authority. Specify whether memos are to be written according to a particular format, and the type of authority preferred. The externs need to know which tasks they must submit to you for approval before being completed, and which tasks they can do on their own. The students must understand who they take assignments from. We ask that all assignments go through you as the supervising attorney, even if the students also work with other attorneys. This system prevents conflicts from developing over the extern’s work and helps the extern maintain an open line of communication with you.

Although the Externship Program has covered many of these subjects in its student orientation, you may want to discuss other relevant subjects, including: confidentiality, dress code and general appearance, use of office equipment, and any other relevant office policies. For instance, tell the student the parameters and purposes of your confidentiality procedures and require the student to dress in the same professional manner as the attorneys in your office.

5. Schedule for Weekly Meetings with the Student

This is the time to make your plans for meeting with your extern. We encourage you to have weekly meetings, during which you can review the student’s work and discuss other matters. Some attorneys direct the student to come see them whenever there is a question or need for feedback. The important thing is to make it clear that you intend to take the time to review his or her work and to talk about relevant matters and topics of interest; then establish a regular procedure for doing this.

One important element of a good externship experience is giving the student opportunities to observe the everyday activities of a lawyer. Any trials, hearings, depositions or meetings on either your or a colleague’s schedule that would be beneficial for the student to attend can be scheduled during your weekly meeting. Once the observation opportunity has occurred, please debrief with your extern so you can discuss how it went, and answer any questions or concerns they may have.

6. The Student’s Expectations for the Externship

Asking the student what she wants to learn from the externship is a good way to develop a two-way pattern of communication. Some students are happy to sit silently and have you do all the talking during this meeting; students often hesitate to say much for fear of looking uninformed.

We hope you will encourage the student to participate in this orientation meeting, so the student will think about what she hopes to learn, and how this will fit into her education goals. Consider requiring the student to set a specific goal to improve one or two practical skills or areas of substantive knowledge. The goal(s) provides a measuring device to determine their progress over the course of the semester. For example, a student might choose to focus on interviewing skills. If you observe an interview early in the semester and another one at the end, the two of you can discuss the improvement. Or a student might choose to improve his research skills. That student will keep records of time spent researching and you can compare techniques used in early research projects to those developed over the course of the semester.

You may find that you need to solicit these ideas from your extern. Some students find it a challenge to be given the opportunity for self-determination. It often helps to talk about what the students are interested in and give suggestions.

7. The Student's Work Schedule

An essential element of the externship experience is establishing a sense of responsibility and commitment. Toward this end, students must have a regular work schedule. As a supervising attorney who must plan assignments and still get your own work done, you are entitled to know when the student will be in your office. A set schedule also gives the student an opportunity to develop a sense of commitment and to view his work as a regular part of the office’s functioning.

Please be firm about the work schedule. Let the student know that tardiness or absences are unacceptable in the professional world. If a student is tardy or absent more than once, please discuss this with the student and let us know, so that we can talk to them. In conjunction with their office schedule, please keep the workload commensurate with the student’s hourly commitment. Along with the externship, your student may also be taking classes which, due to mid-term exams and make-up classes, may pose a conflict with work. It is important that the student notify you of any scheduling needs and that there is mutual agreement about the completion schedule for work assignments.

Please treat the student extern as you would a regular employee in your office, remembering that you are playing a substantial role in his or her professional development.

8. Tour of the Office and Introduction to Others

Please take the time to show the student around your office. This tour should include a brief overview of the specific resources that may be valuable to the student, and also introductions to support staff and other attorneys.

9. Explanation of First Assignment

Your extern should receive her first assignment after the orientation. Please take the time to explain the assignment; again, students will often fail to ask you questions for fear of appearing uninformed. Give the student a specific deadline for this and all future assignments, and mark these deadlines on your calendar as a reminder to check on the student’s progress. Sections B and C below offer more detailed suggestions for assignments and feedback.
B. ASSIGNMENTS

1. Giving Guidance on Assignments

When you assign a student work, go over the assignment in detail. It may be helpful to have the student repeat back any issues that are particularly complex. Discuss the particular resources you would use and note any unfamiliar resources. State the deadline for submission of a first draft. Then leave the student alone to find the appropriate law, procedure, form, etc. This process of working to find the answer teaches more than simply spoon-feeding them the information.

Some students hesitate to ask for further help on an assignment. Weekly meetings and early deadlines are helpful for this purpose. In addition, students should be encouraged to ask the immediate supervising attorneys, as well as others, for help when necessary. On the other hand, some students may ask too many questions. If students should be able to resolve a matter on their own, they should be encouraged to do so. Above all, make sure that deadlines are clear.

It may help you to know that we apply some pressure on the externs to think about their work as if they are the lawyer serving the client’s interest. We tell the students that their first concern must be for the client. We ask the student to think in terms of what she would do with the case if she were ultimately responsible.

2. Supervision by More Than One Attorney

Some agencies rotate students through several divisions in an effort to give them a varied learning experience. This makes it difficult for one attorney to assign all the work. Because these arrangements have caused problems in the past, we suggest that all offices rotating students, as well as offices where students will receive work from various attorneys, appoint one attorney as the overall extern supervisor. This person should keep files on the students and be aware of their status at all times. A good method is to require that all work assignments be reviewed by the supervisor.

C. FEEDBACK

We cannot overstate how important it is to give feedback to externs. Unlike information you give to the students about their assignments, available resources, strategies, and legal issues, this is an opportunity to review the effectiveness of the student’s performance, and to suggest alternatives that will enhance that performance in the future.

While we do not expect you to evaluate the extern’s work thoroughly each time she performs a task, we would like you to evaluate the student at least twice for each type of task assigned. Thus, if your extern interviews clients or witnesses, or makes court appearances, please observe and critique at least one such interview early on in the semester, then another later so that progress can be assessed. The feedback you give should be detailed in terms of both substance and process. Similarly, since most students produce a variety of written work, please review a couple examples of each type of work product, pointing out where the work is effective and where it needs to be improved.

Giving and receiving feedback can be uncomfortable. However, feedback which acknowledges effective behavior before it critiques ineffective behavior is easier to communicate and carries more impact. In any feedback session, you should endeavor to include both types of information.

The feedback process consists of two basic steps:

1. The student’s evaluation of his own performance;
2. Your evaluation of the student’s performance.

1. Student’s Self-Evaluation

Self-evaluation is particularly important skill for students to develop. Before you critique a student, provide opportunities to discuss the performance with you; as the student may change their impressions or forget their own immediate reactions in response to yours. Ideally, while the student self-critiques, you neither agree nor disagree. Then ask the student what changes they want to make. This question encourages the student to move through the learning process, from performing a task, to analyzing it and developing a theory for improved performance. In addition, this process reinforces a pattern of reflective thinking.

2. Your Evaluation of the Student’s Performance

Begin your critique with a general statement about the student’s overall performance. Sometimes it is difficult to do this and at the same time begin your critique with a positive remark. If the performance was dismal, it is very likely that the student is aware of this and your general evaluation will not surprise your extermin. Follow the general evaluation with a specific critique. Vague statements such as “good job,” or “you’ll do better with practice,” are nearly valueless. Like all learners, externs need specific examples demonstrating the behavior being discussed. For example, if your student conducted an interview, illustrate how they performed by giving concrete information: “you made the client feel comfortable when you said to her, ‘I see you are concerned about this, Mrs. Jones, and I am going to do everything I can to assist you.’”

D. ISSUES, DISCRIMINATION & HARRASSMENT

Most externships proceed smoothly, and both students and supervising attorneys reap the benefits of the mentoring relationship. However, there are occasional surprises.

When a student believes that there are difficulties with their placement, we first ask them to discuss the situation with their supervising attorney. If you believe there to be problems with the extern, we ask that you likewise discuss it with the student first. If a situation is not rectified or resolved to everyone’s satisfaction we will intervene. However, if the student is behaving irresponsibly toward their externship, or if there are ethical issues, please contact us right away, in addition to discussing the problem with the student.

We expect all supervisors are committed to a policy against discrimination in externships based on color, race, religion, marital status, sex, national origin, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, disability and military status. We require that you create working environments where all students feel safe from harassment or discrimination. Please consult the following references for additional information:

1) Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. Section 12101 et seq.
2) Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. Section 2000 et seq.
3) Title IX of the Civil Rights Act, 20 U.S.C. Section 1681 et seq.

E. SUPERVISING ATTORNEY REQUIREMENTS

1. Memorandum of Agreement

This form will be given to you by your extern at the beginning of each semester. Please review this document with your extern. Your extern is responsible for returning this document back to us. Please keep a copy as you may wish to refer to it from time to time to refresh your memory regarding your specific commitment. (Appendix A)

We understand that it may not always be possible to provide each element outlined in the memorandum. When we make a decision about an externship placement, we try to be as flexible as possible within parameters that will ensure the student a high quality educational experience. The factors we consider most important are the variety and type of tasks the students are exposed to and the quality of supervision and feedback they will receive. Above all, we intend the memorandum to set the tone for your role as supervising attorney.

2. Time Sheets

Please sign each sheet when the student submits them to you, prior to the student’s next class meeting or private meeting with the Externship Director. Students are asked to be specific; “Research – 4 hours” is not enough. We want to know what the student is researching and the amount of time the student is spending on each stage of their research. Please review the extern’s time logs carefully and question them about any items that require explanation. You may use these as a tool to examine and discuss the student’s progress.

3. Mid-Semester and Final Evaluations

The student is responsible for setting up and conducting a meeting with you to complete their midterm evaluation. This midterm evaluation is an opportunity for the student to assess performance thus far and create goals for the remainder of the semester. After completing the evaluation meeting, please read and sign off on the form. (See Appendix B).
The final evaluation form will be sent to you by our office. It is critical that, after completing the form, you take the time to review the evaluation with your extern. You might also ask the student for their feedback (See Appendix C).

4. Site Visit Attorney Meetings

Typically once a semester, we hold sessions for our supervising attorneys either at the law school, in your office or by telephone. The purpose of these sessions is to update you about new aspects of our program, including new forms, as well as to receive feedback from you. Your participation is essential to the well-being of our externship program. We will send you notice of meeting dates, or arrange an appointment with you.

F. STUDENT EXTERN REQUIREMENTS

Our students receive 3 to 15 units of credit for their externship field experience. These credits are pass/fail; therefore, your evaluation of their work will not affect their grade, unless it involves a breach of professional responsibility. Students also must fulfill the academic component of the course, which includes reflective assignments, meetings with externship faculty, and a reflective externship seminar. Brief descriptions of these requirements are provided in the attached syllabus.

G. WASHINGTON’S RULE NINE: ADMISSION TO LIMITED PRACTICE

Student externs representing clients are required to have a limited license to practice law in the state of Washington. The extern (legal intern) must meet the Rule Nine requirements and have a supervising attorney. Externs from Gonzaga Law School will be Rule Nine qualified and are responsible for preparing an application for your review and signature. Please contact the externship office if you have any questions regarding an extern’s Rule Nine qualifications.

We appreciate your willingness to help train our students to be competent and ethical attorneys. You are providing a valuable service to the student, our law school, and the legal profession. If there is anything we can do to facilitate your efforts in achieving our goals for the Externship Program, please let us know.
III. APPENDIX A
EXTERNSHIP MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT

Student Extern (Student): ____________________________ Semester/Year: ____________

Site Supervisor (Supervisor): ____________________________

Placement: _______________________________________

Faculty Supervisor (Faculty): ____________________________

The following are the expectations for the supervisor, student and faculty. We created these expectations using ABA Standard 304(c). All externships will consist of two components: (a) work experience under the supervision of the supervisor; and (b) an academic component under the supervision of the faculty.

The hours and dates for the externship are:

Expected Start Date: ____________ Expected End Date: ____________

Credits/Hours: The student is registered for _____ credits (total field credits plus the one credit seminar). This requires _____ total hours of work over the course of the semester, approximately _____ hours per week.

SUPERVISOR RESPONSIBILITIES:

The mentorship, supervision and practical training provided to students at their externship placements is an integral part of teaching and forming future professionals. The law school is aware that accepting students in such a mentoring role entails additional work and time on the part of the supervisor, the other attorneys, and staff of the placement office. We are grateful and express our sincere thanks. Please fill in the necessary information, initial each standard, and add any comments on this form. As a supervisor, I agree to the following:

_____ Orientation: I will ensure that the student receives an orientation, including a discussion of office procedures and confidentiality, and an overview of the work and expectations.

_____ Nature of Assignments: I agree to:

Engage the student in work that provides substantial lawyering experience and to include multiple opportunities for performance, feedback and self-evaluation;
Assign projects as challenging as the student can reasonably handle;

Keep clerical and administrative tasks that are outside the role of attorneys in the office, to less than 5% of the student’s work time;

Invite the student, when feasible, to participate in the strategic decision-making process; and

Encourage the student to observe court proceedings, strategy meetings, trainings and CLE’s, other appropriate professional activities, and to talk with the student about their reflections on these experiences.

Assignment and Feedback Process: I agree to engage in the following process:

The student and I will discuss the matter to be assigned, including a discussion of our mutual objectives, the relationship of the project to the larger substantive, procedural or practical issues in the case/matter, relevant legal doctrine and theory, and any noteworthy ethical or social implications.

I will advise the student of the resources, methods, and materials available for the project.

When the student completes a first draft of written work, I will timely review the draft and meet with them to provide specific feedback.

I will have the student redraft, and will continue to provide feedback, as many times as necessary until we achieve a satisfactory final product.

I will encourage the student to self-assess their performance and will help the student strategize ways to improve and develop their skills and knowledge.

Regular Meetings and Reflection Opportunities: I will meet with the student at least weekly to discuss assignments, provide feedback, and invite reflection (discuss the student’s observations, experiences, goals, and questions). I will be available to meet additionally as needed.

Forms and Program Contact: I agree to complete both the mid-term and final evaluation form on the student’s work (forms to be provided by the law school), to return the form by the set due date, to communicate with the Externship Program regularly, especially in the event of a student issue, and to familiarize myself with the material in the Externship Program Handbook.

Logistics: I will verify that the student has a designated workspace and access to the tools (e.g., telephone, computer, library) and support reasonably necessary to complete assignments.

Legal Compliance: My organization is responsible for ensuring that our labor and employment practices are in compliance with state, local, and federal laws as related to the externship. My organization will provide a working environment free from harassment or discrimination.
Licensure: I certify that I am a judge or licensed attorney, and that I have the authority, resources, and ability to directly supervise the student.

Please describe the duties/opportunities you envision for the student:

STUDENT RESPONSIBILITIES:

The school is excited to support you during your externship experience. Please fill in the necessary information, initial each standard, and add any comments on this form. As an extern, I agree to the following:

Professionalism: I agree to follow directions, seek clarification and advice in a timely fashion, and comport myself with professionalism and integrity.

Communication: I agree to keep my supervisor and faculty informed of my schedule and workload, and to inform them in advance if I need to make adjustments or anticipate conflicts.

Development Goals: I will create goals for the semester of how I plan to develop professionally and will discuss these with my supervisor and faculty.

Academic Compliance: I agree to attend orientation, all classroom/online sessions, meetings, and to complete all required readings, evaluations, timesheets, and assignments.

Reflection: I will reflect on the observations, experiences, and ethical considerations that arise during my externship, and will be mindful of confidentiality.

Self-Evaluation: I will strive to self-assess each assignment I complete. In so doing, I will consider what I did effectively and areas for improvement. I will seek out and encourage feedback and discuss my self-assessment with supervisor and faculty.

GONZAGA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW EXTERNSHIP PROGRAM RESPONSIBILITIES:

The faculty agrees to perform the following:

Program Administration: We will oversee the Externship Program to assure the educational quality of the student’s experience and evaluate the student’s academic performance.

Academic Requirements: We will provide classroom/on-line instruction related to the field placement experience and will ensure on-going, contemporaneous, faculty-guided reflection to develop the student’s experience, including encouraging self-evaluation and reflection through written assignments, one-on-one meetings, readings, and guided discussions with other student externs.

Contact/Availability: We will remain in regular contact, including possible visits, with the placement and the student to ensure the quality of the educational experience. We are available to assist the student and supervisor should any questions or concerns arise during the semester.

Evaluation: I will evaluate the student’s academic performance during the externship. The assessment will be based on the student and supervisor evaluations, timely compliance with requirements, the quality of the self-reflection, and professionalism. Based on this evaluation, I will determine whether credit should be granted.

For this assignment, please schedule a meeting with your supervisor. Before your meeting, please think about the questions addressed to “Extern” and be prepared to discuss them with your supervisor. At the meeting, please discuss your answers to the questions on this form with your supervising attorney. This form can be a starting point for the discussion, but please feel free to deviate and discuss other aspects of your externship and professional development.

While this process may be somewhat intimidating, the discussion should provide you with an honest assessment of your strengths and potential areas of improvement. Please make sure this is a discussion with your supervisor—do not just give this form to your supervisor and ask them to fill it out. Thoroughly record responses to the questions and make sure that both you and your supervisor sign off on the form.

Check the activities, which you have had the opportunity to learn or to practice thus far during your externship.

☐ Legal research  ☐ Identification of issues  ☐ Fact gathering
☐ Oral communication  ☐ Negotiation  ☐ Time/practice management

Standard 305. STUDY OUTSIDE THE CLASSROOM
(a) A law school may grant credit toward the J.D. degree for courses or a program that permits or requires student participation in studies or activities away from or outside the law school or in a format that does not involve attendance at regularly scheduled class sessions.
(b) Credit granted shall be commensurate with the time and effort required and the anticipated quality of the educational experience of the student.
(c) Each student's academic achievement shall be evaluated by a faculty member. For purposes of Standard 305 and its Interpretations, the term "faculty member" means a member of the full-time or part-time faculty. When appropriate a school may use faculty members from other law schools to supervise or assist in the supervision or review of a field placement program.
(d) The studies or activities shall be approved in advance and periodically reviewed following the school's established procedures for approval of the curriculum.
(e) A field placement program shall include:
(1) a clear statement of the goals and methods, and a demonstrated relationship between those goals and methods to the program in operation;
(2) adequate instructional resources, including faculty teaching in and supervising the program who devote the requisite time and attention to satisfy program goals and are sufficiently available to students;
(3) a clearly articulated method of evaluating each student's academic performance involving both a faculty member and the field placement supervisor;
(4) a method for selecting, training, evaluating, and communicating with field placement supervisors;
(5) periodic on-site visits or their equivalent by a faculty member if the field placement program awards four or more academic credits (or equivalent) for field work in any academic term or if on-site visits or their equivalent are otherwise necessary and appropriate;
(6) a requirement that students have successfully completed one academic year of study prior to participation in the field placement program;
(7) opportunities for student reflection on their field placement experience, through a seminar, regularly scheduled tutorials, or other means of guided reflection. Where a student can earn four or more academic credits (or equivalent) in the program for fieldwork, the seminar, tutorial, or other means of guided reflection must be provided contemporaneously.
Interpretation 305-1
Activities covered by Standard 305(a) include field placement, moot court, law review, and directed research programs or courses for which credit toward the J.D. degree is granted, as well as courses taken in parts of the college or university outside the law school for which credit toward the J.D. degree is granted.

Interpretation 305-2
The nature of field placement programs presents special opportunities and unique challenges for the maintenance of educational quality. Field placement programs accordingly require particular attention from the law school and the Accreditation Committee.

Interpretation 305-3
A law school may not grant credit to a student for participation in a field placement program for which the student receives compensation. This Interpretation does not preclude reimbursement of reasonable out-of-pocket expenses related to the field placement.

Interpretation 305-4
(a) A law school that has a field placement program shall develop, publish and communicate to students and field instructors a statement that describes the educational objectives of the program.
(b) In a field placement program, as the number of students involved or the number of credits awarded increases, the level of instructional resources devoted to the program should also increase.

Interpretation 305-5
Standard 305 by its own force does not allow credit for Distance Education courses.
