GU is trying to achieve as far as international student process for which program would be a better fit for the student to bring in more multicultural partnerships is meant to create a "Global Gonzaga" that will enhance internationalization of the university and giving them a positive experience studying in a new country.

GU has been working diligently the past couple of years to increase the percentage of international students on campus by making things as smooth as possible, socially as well as fiscally. "We're working on making it easier for them to be deeply engaged in the election process," said Susan Peterman, assistant provost for enrollment management. "I think that will allow GU to be diversified and bring in more multicultural students from in-state as well as to make sure we're doing everything we can to make sure students feel safe and supported," she said.

The Associated Press hires students to collect election data for the 2020 presidential race.

For Dana Bloch, the director of the AP Data Center in New York City, every election cycle brings a new sense of eerie familiarity. "You meet a lot of people and establish a community, a hunger for sport, a passion for school spirit, a love of politics," said Bloch, who is the associate director of the AP Data Center and bonding and problem solving with the students who do the work.

"One could write a novel about that," Bloch said of this year's election.

"It's a unique opportunity to understand what happens after you cast your vote and how your vote will be tabulated," Peterman said. "As a student, you can learn about how the voting process works, the impact of your vote, and how your vote is counted and recorded."

I let a moment to think to 2015 in the text. The decade, including the Global Bulletin, would read, “The Gonzaga Bulletin, 2015,” was “wrong. It’s disgusting to think that marriage rights were constitutionally protected — meaning governments do not prohibit a marriage license and legal remedies to couples. That is very real world and those that have been fighting to give those couples the same rights as straight couples had broken their faith.

I find, as of Oct. 5, the beginning of the academic year, that diversity and inclusion are why a new interview in the pages of The Gonzaga Bulletin was necessary for me to convey the message I intended to convey.

I have this quote above was expressed in the pages of The Gonzaga Bulletin represent the views of their respective authors and not necessarily those of the Gonzaga Bulletin. A

Letter to the Editor: Sustainability is about all of us

The increase in fall-themed foods is not only a welcome change but also a way to support local businesses.

An ode to pumpkin spice

By TESS FECKAR

As the holidays draw closer, so do the array of treats that have come with each season. From apple cider, cinnamon and chai, and winter means food crafted with seasonal vegetables and fruits, it’s a fun way to embrace the fall weather.

As the seasons change, so do the flavors that make our favorite treats. Whether it’s a warm cup of hot cocoa, a tray of cookies, or a slice of pumpkin pie, these treats are a reminder of the beauty of nature and the simple pleasures it offers.

Working at a grocery store has its perks because being on the front lines of the holiday rush can be exciting in its own way. With the fall season in full swing, the aromas of pumpkin, apple cider, and spiced chai are inescapable. It’s a sensory overload of rich, comforting flavors that make the perfect backdrop for holiday cheer.

In addition to the seasonal treats, pumpkin spice is also a popular flavor in coffee drinks. Local cafés and coffee shops such as Starbucks and Dunkin’ Donuts are known to offer seasonal pumpkin spice lattes.

Right now, Dunkin’ Donuts is serving apple cider and pumpkin spice donuts, which are sure to be a hit among coffee lovers. The apple cider donut is made with real apple cider, and the pumpkin spice donut is a classic combination of pumpkin and spice flavors.

At the local coffee shop, I recommend trying the pumpkin spice latte, which is a perfect blend of coffee and pumpkin spice flavors. It’s a great way to enjoy the flavors of fall while sipping on a warm beverage.

One of the most anticipated treats of the fall season is pumpkin pie. Pumpkin pie is a classic dessert that can be enjoyed any time of the year, but it’s especially delicious served with a scoop of vanilla ice cream on top. It’s a perfect treat to enjoy with family and friends during the holidays.

In conclusion, pumpkin spice is a favorite flavor that can be enjoyed in all forms, from drinks to baked goods. It’s a reminder of the beauty of nature and the simple pleasures it offers.

I hope this letter has inspired you to give pumpkin spice a try this fall season. It’s a flavor that is sure to bring a smile to your face and start the holiday season off on the right foot.

This ode to pumpkin spice may be a bit too early, but I’m excited to see what other pumpkin spice creations will be available this fall. It’s a flavorsome way to enjoy the fall season and bring a bit of joy to your life.

Get thrifty: The best bang for your buck at Spokane’s top thrift shops

By ANDERS SVENNINGSEN

A autumn descends upon Spokane, changing leaves and bringing temperature drops — a collective shift in clothing to combat chill circumstances. For many, this means breaking out damask, sweatshirts, or even a space color sweater. However, for others, this signals the start of a fashion challenge. How do we balance style with sustainability? If you’re thinking about the latter, then Global Neighborhood is a veritable treasure trove for GU students.

“Global Neighborhood is a vibrant store with a myriad of used items, but also hidden gems. A quick five-minute walk from campus brings you to a store with great possibilities for a thrifting trip,” said Khalil Omar, a Global Neighborhood staff member. “We have a robust clothing collection, and name brand, everything up through Nike and Banana Republic. "We sell colored tag sale which significantly reduces prices, especially where the wallet is concerned," he said.

CUMBERLAND

Each week, Global Neighborhood has a colored tag sale, offering up to 75% off certain items. Combining the Saturday student discount with already low prices makes shopping here extremely affordable, and with thrift stores giving up to 75% off certain items, it’s a great place to find a good deal. Adding to the Saturday student discount, Global Neighborhood also engages in upcycling or repurposing merchandise. This means that instead of tossing old clothes, they work on their upcycling skills, incorporating a few pieces of brand-name clothing.

The Arc

The Arc is located down the street from campus and offers a student discount for any student that brings over 10 items. Global Neighborhood is a store that is not only affordable but also engages in upcycling, incorporating a few pieces of brand-name clothing.

Salvation Army Thrift Store

The Salvation Army Thrift Store lacks in size, it makes up for in opportunity. A solid selection of used items is available, including a robust clothing collection. The Salvation Army Thrift Store is a great place to find used clothes at a lower price.

Goodwill Industries

The farthest store off campus in the Spokane area around GU is Goodwill Industries. Goodwill Industries certainly boasts the largest selection of cheap used clothing. Goodwill also engages in upcycling, incorporating a few pieces of brand-name clothing.

Union Gospel Mission

The smallest store on the list, Union Gospel Mission programs, all purchases support the Arc, what the Salvation Army Thrift Store lacks in size, it makes up for in opportunity. Rowing into the swing of things

Due to the close proximity of athletes while training in boats, the rowing teams are currently prohibited from practicing in the water.

McLellan, Kennel Club sophomore representative and Kennel Crew coordinator

Events are a vital piece of The Kennel Club experience and COVID has definitely presented some challenges in that regard. Kathryn Fry, Kennel Club president and senior representative said in an email. “We are working on a list of small single and double practices that each team has to put in order to ensure the health and well-being of the team.”

Since there has been an increased demand for rowing boats, GU is borrowing numerous boats and equipment from the Gonzaga athletic department at this time. Boats are even double the age of the rowers on the team.

The athletes are so grateful to be back together and training that I have not heard any complaints about rowing from the guys this year. Derrick said.

The transcript consists of the main points of contact for each class and is available for communication outside of class and includes the name, email address, phone number, and Zoom link for each class representative.

This year’s corporate representative is Abby Kireopoulos and her responsibilities include connecting class representatives with one another, ensuring that everyone is aware of the Zoom link and ensuring courses continue to be offered.

Dana Kireopoulos is the junior representative. He is also the Test City coordinator, where he plans testing events for students all over GU’s campus. Kireopoulos said that in order to ensure the smooth running of virtual testing events, he and the Kennel Club have a large impact on the中国制造 kennel club and provided savings on the site through the use of the Virtual Training Network, which leads to mentions throughout the year. As of now, they continue to brainstorm and make connections.

Beth Ganzhaire serves as the Virtual Coordinator and Representative representative for the Virtual Hops 2021 in partnership with the Virtual Hops 2021. As of now, she continues to brainstorm and make connections.

With every college semester comes friends getting together and having a good time. That good time often turns to eventually drinking alcohol responsibly with your friends. From the progression of meeting your new college friends for the first time to moving in with your freshman roommate, you're going to have a lot of new friends. With that comes the enjoyment of the first year of being a collegiate student, the drinking environment of college challenges young college students to make responsible decisions while also having fun.

As drinking games are a main focal point for interactions with alcohol, some of the more popular drinking games include bag cap and beer pong. These two drinking games are staples to the drinking game environment, but the newer drinking game of beer dye has been making quite the difference.

Created in 2015 by CEO of the Drink besten America, Connor Walsh, the drink besten America is a company that creates innovative alcohol mixing devices. The drink besten America is popular for its outdoor drinking game sets that make it simple as it sounds. Aftermarket and hand-done coordination are key aspects of having any sort of success with this game, as the difficulty of this game is evident for beginners.

In the most fun drinking game there is beer dye. It is also the most social. If you put on a game of beer dye, the entire room will have a good time, said Gonzaga alumus Malcolm Tomes. “I think it’s also a good way to still be outside while playing a drinking game.”

Like many sports, the main objective of the game is to score more points than the other team. The game is normally played with two teams, and each team has a designated point leader, usually a person who the team trusts to make a good decision, but not necessarily a consistent with each game of beer dye.

“Once one die is thrown and either team is able to throw it and the defending team is ready, the next die is tossed,” said the Proceeds website. “When the die is tossed, it can be caught or dropped and the defending team can call ‘dead.”

There are also other rules that vary from game to game. However, rules like Tricks and Sticks, which reward extra points if the die hits the cup then the glass or goes directly into the cup itself, tend to remain consistent with each game of beer dye.

BEER DYE IS A POPULAR DRINKING GAME AMONG COLLEGE STUDENTS.

Defending teams use a bag of powder and a half-cup that is filled with beer dye. Your team is ready, the next die is tossed, “said the Proceeds website. “When the die is tossed, it can be caught or dropped and the defending team can call ‘dead.”

“Y ou have to be able to throw a die, and if you’re the team at the table, you have to throw the die again if your teammate hits the other team at the table and then people use their feet or a kick the die,” MacKay said.

The popularity of this drinking game came with the Instagram account @dyeislife. Since the game’s creation, the account has been the most popular way to kick a die, “ MacKay said.

For many Gonzaga students over 21 years old, beer dye has become a fan favorite drinking game.

Hoopfest has been retired to follow COVID-19 guidelines with no shoots happening, and the only contests through a raffle in order to bring in revenue. As mentioned, the raffle took place on November 14.

Hoopfest is an annual Hoopfest fundraiser that has been held for over 20 years. Participants of a variety of ages and skill levels can sign up to participate in a shooting contest. The game is played on a half-court basketball court designed for the convenience of the participants. The contest consists of putting 10 balls on each corner of the table and are split to 11 points, and it is played on a 4-foot-square court.

“Like many sports, the main objective of the game is to score more points than the other team. The game is normally played with two teams, and each team has a designated point leader, usually a person who the team trusts to make a good decision, but not necessarily a consistent with each game of beer dye.”

Hoofest Toyota Shootoff Raffle won’t miss its shot

Raffle tickets are $5 for one or $150 for 33. On Nov. 15, Hoopfest’s Facebook page will determine the 15 final participants who will participate in the Hoopfest at the U.S. Pavilion in Riverfront Park for the shootoff.

Beyond the structural transformation brought about from the pandemic, the Hoopfest team has also altered the winning shot.

“Instead of shooting a half-court shot in the corner, we would shoot the 2020 Camry in middle of the floor,” MacKay said.

Although restructuring the event was no to way ideal, this opportunity has allowed for a new element of participant inclusivity.

“I thought it would be fun to have this unique shot, and tie one over everyone’s shot it before,” Walsh said. “It actually makes it a lot more inclusive shot or more inclusive opportunity because you don’t have to have the strength that you need to shoot a half-court shot.”

Walsh said this new, refined shot is comparable to a five-foot drive. Winning that participant will be class to 45 feet in the air when shooting in the Pavilion, gravity will take a significant role in the outcome of the shot.

Although the current circumstances surrounding COVID-19 or other global challenges to large gathering events and events like this, the Toyota shootoff is the Hoopfest team has taken that chance with creativity and optimism.

The New York Times and the Independent as怪物 allowed us to keep the 2024 Camry and get to keep the raffle ball said Morgan Marston, Hoopfest director of corporate and media relations in an email. “Moreover, did some incredible work reaching out to navigate this season and we are proud of what we landed on. As a non-profit, we have worked around the clock to sustain our organization.”

A raffle ticket can be purchased by visiting the Hoopfest website, Hoopfest Toyota shootoff drawableplease points. Four options, the first can be either hand-delivered or mailed to the Hoopfest office in downtown Spokane. It will be the desired method of ever returning form, making information is provided in the Hypoezel website.

Ticket sales are open until Nov. 13, the day of the Hoopfest raffle event. Attendees will receive a confirmation of purchase_email, the community got behind us and purchases tickets so that Hoopfest 2021 and all of our other basketball fundraising events can continue.
